Within the Shakespearean corpus the image of ancient Rome works as the emblem of the classical past, a goldmine of foundational myths and the model of an authoritative culture early modern England felt compelled to look to. To Ancient Rome Shakespeare devoted five plays (Titus Andronicus, Julius Caesar, Coriolanus, Anthony and Cleopatra, Cymbeline) and a narrative poem (The Rape of Lucrece): the themes and motifs of these works will be examined in depth in the classroom while the city of Rome, with its theatres (and especially the Globe's replica in the park of Villa Borghese), archaeological sites and artistic resources will offer participants a unique opportunity to complement their study outdoor. Participants in this second edition of the SIRSS will be provided with appropriate methodological tools which will help them to develop a specific competence on Shakespeare's Rome within an intercultural and interdisciplinary perspective.

The SIRSS is held in English and is open to (R)MA students, PhD students, postdocs and high school teachers from all over the world. Participants from Dutch universities are eligible for KNIR bursaries covering all expenses, including the stay in Rome. For information on the program, consult the SIRSS website at <http://lingueletteratureculturestraniere.uniroma3.it/bacheca/sriss/>.
