Spring 2019, the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome will organise again, in close cooperation with the Research School OIKOS and VU University Amsterdam, a hands-on course Latin epigraphy on location intended for MA students, ReMA students and PhDs working in the areas of Ancient History, Classics and Ancient Civilisations, Classical or Roman Archaeology, and Roman law. The course will take place in Rome from February 22 until March 3, preceded by three days of introductory classes at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam on 25 January and 7-8 February 2019 (venue to be announced).

The course offers an intensive introduction into Latin epigraphy from the Republican period up until Late Antiquity and is aimed at the acquisition and application of practical research skills in epigraphic research. The approach and focus of this course is strongly interdisciplinary with attention being paid to philological, socio-linguistic, literary, archaeological, and legal aspects of epigraphic texts. In addition, explicit attention will be paid to the theoretical and methodological aspects of epigraphic research.

The main part of the course is set up as a ten days' intensive seminar which will take place at the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome. The course comprises individual study and research (under supervision) in the library of the KNIR (and some neighbouring foreign institutes), alternated with lectures, and museum and site visits.

International students may be admitted to the course provided that they are registered as a student at a Dutch university.
