

PIUS XII AND THE LOW COUNTRIES (1939-1958)

Three Years after the Opening of the Vatican Archives:
First Results, New Insights, Research Perspectives

The opening of the different Vatican Archives for the pontificate of Pius XII (1939-1958) in March 2020 sparked the interest of scholars from different disciplines worldwide. It strengthened tendencies to revisit the history of the 1940s and 1950s beyond established narratives and sources, and nourished hopes to find answers to old and new questions and to discover innovative themes and approaches. Three years after the opening of these archives, a multidisciplinary group of scholars from Belgium and the Netherlands stages a scientific conference to analyze the impact of the opening of these archives on a variety of fields of research, specifically relating to the history of the Low Countries in the 1940s and 1950s. It presents new research based on documentation retrieved in the Vatican archives on both the period of World War II and the afterwar period, and analyzes to what extent these Vatican sources not only challenge existing research on the history of the Catholic church, but also on broader themes in the history of the Low Countries.

Sam Kuijken (KADOC-KU Leuven)

The conference will be held on Thursday 9 and Friday 10 February, 2023. It is hosted by the Academia Belgica and the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome. Scholars from different disciplines will take the floor. They are present physically, but it will be possible to follow the conference online. The main conference language is English. The conference will be followed by a publication.

The conference has been prepared by a workshop, where invited experts gave a keynote on how the opening of the Vatican Archives for Pius XII relates to the state of the art of different fields of research. Participants discussed their findings and research perspectives among themselves. Also a guided visit to some of the Vatican Archives was part of the workshop. This workshop was held in the Academia Belgica, Rome, on Thursday 3 and Friday 4 February 2022 and was open only for panelists and invited guests. The keynotes were streamed and were made available online.
